
Why Custom Window Treatments

Contributed by Judy Soccio
Tuesday, 22 January 2008

Your decorating choices "customize" your home by reflecting your personality and interests. And nothing makes a more immediate design statement than your window treatments. Custom made window treatments ensure that you will never see your window treatments in someone else's home.

Your decorating choices "customize" your home by reflecting your personality and interests. And nothing makes a more immediate design statement than your window treatments. While curtains, draperies, blinds and the like can be found in stores ranging from the big box home improvement stores to department stores to on-line sites; custom made window treatments ensure that you will never see your window treatments in someone else's home!

A custom window covering is professionally designed specifically for your window. A professional drapery designer or workroom can enhance and reinforce the mood you have chosen for that room by offering you a wide variety of choices. Many drapery designers now use design software that lets you see how the treatments will look in your room before the treatments are made.

A custom window covering is a treatment for your window in specific colors you have chosen -- these colors coordinate and work with the overall design plan. Most drapery designers offer numerous fabric and trim lines. They can help you choose the perfect fabrics and trims in the comfort of your own home.

A custom window covering meets your privacy and energy needs -- custom design allows the degree of privacy and energy efficiency to be tailored to your needs without compromising the desired appearance or mood. Custom window coverings can be motorized to open and close at pre-set times thus insuring continuous energy efficiency.

A custom window covering is made in a specific size -- the treatment fits your window perfectly in width and length, and is in proportion to rest of the room. Odd size windows, extra long or wide windows, French doors can be creatively addressed by a professional drapery designer.

A custom window covering is professionally installed -- the proper brackets, screws, and hardware are used to insure smooth operation for the normal life of the product.

Custom window coverings are cost effective. Drapery designers can save you time and money as you turn your house into the home of your dreams. They help you define your style and refine your color choices. They make sure the measurements are accurate so your treatments will look their best. Drapery designers save you time by offering appropriate fabric choices for your treatments in your own home. And after your choice is made, the professional drapery workroom ensures the quality of the fabric by inspecting for flaws and color variations before beginning the project. Custom made window treatments can provide many years of beauty and comfort to your home. Contact a professional drapery designer to begin "customizing" your home.

Judy Soccio provides couture window fashions in fabric and stained glass. In her couture drapery workroom, Judy Soccio offers hand stitched hems, British construction methods, and hand--applied trims as construction hallmarks. As an award-winning window treatment specialist, Judy Soccio provides window treatment design guidance; discussing fabric suitability, treatment styles, appropriate linings and interlinings. Gather inspirations for your windows at <http://www.wedowindowstoo.com>